Interesting Pictorial Comparison of Rear Structure

Rear A - This rear has almost sufficient angulations and a medium tail set but the dog could use more turn to the stifle. The musculature has enough width but not much depth and very little definition.

Rear B - Similar to A this rear is only slightly under angulated but has a tad less turn to the stifle than A. This dog has a good tail set, though the shape of the tail is not optimal because of the curve. Good mix of muscle width and definition but could use more thickness.

Rear C - This dog has very good angulations and exceptional stifle combined with good tail set, good length of tail and decent shape. Superior muscle tone a tad bit too much width to the thigh but great depth to the muscle. Probably the best overall hindquarter on this page!

Rear D This dog also has just a tad bit less than optimal angulations than Rear C but also has a bit high tail set accentuated by the amount of "meat behind the tail (big butt)" but the shape of the tail is near perfect (best shaped tail on this page) though the tail is a tad bit thick. Very nice musculature good width and thickness and definition.

Rear H - This dog has too much angulation (if there is such a thing LOL) and a semi-high tail set or so it appears from this photo. Lack length of hip and angle of croup. The tail appears to have good shape. Exceptional definition could use a bit more width to the thigh muscle, thickness is adequate.

Rear M - this dog has a straight stifle and is lacking angulations, a medium tail set with a good length but not shape. Has good definition but does lack width.

Rear N - This dog does not have quite enough angulations nor enough turn to the stifle. Extremely low hocks. The tail set is OK but the tail has poor shape. Could use a bit more definition and width to the muscle.

Rear O - This dog is a bit over angulated but not too bad, has good turn to the stifle but the tail set is a bit high. Lack length of hip and angle of croup. Can't determine shape of the tail. I hope it is not tucked under as this would be considered a "cur tail" which is as bad as a "gay tail". Could use more thickness and definition to the muscle has good width.

From the Editor

I can hardly believe that we are already in the month of May! I know that we are looking forward to Spring and all the outdoor activities that we all love to share with our companions.

I hope you will consider coming to our Fun Day at Connie Kogler's house; thank you for opening your home and land top all of us, Connie!

I would also like to have all of you thinking about helping sponsor trophies for our next AKC All Breed Dog Show in October. ;)

If you have seen the report that the Today show aired a piece against the AKC, please post a comment on their site in support of our AKC., and refusal to air AKC's side of the report. If you haven't seen it, you can go to their website and seen the recording. You can also see the report of what the Today show DIDN'T show.

blessings,
Sandy
